

Doug Tulino Appointed to Serve as Deputy Postmaster General

On May 12, 2021, Postmaster General Louis DeJoy appointed longtime Vice President of Labor Relations and Chief Human Resources Officer and Executive Vice President, Doug Tulino, to serve as Deputy Postmaster General. Mr. Tulino will continue to serve as the Postal Service's Chief Human Resources Officer in his new role.

We applaud the appointment of Mr. Tulino, who has been a fixture in the collective bargaining process for many years and was instrumental in brokering the deal that led to the 2018-2021 National Agreement that the membership ratified by a wide margin. The most important jobs at Postal Service Headquarters need to be filled by individuals who are deeply committed to the institution and the almost 650,000 employees dedicated to its success. We credit the Postmaster General for selecting the best person to fill this important role. In Mr. Tulino, the Postmaster General will have a trusted advisor who has and continues to be committed to Postal employees and especially to the rural craft and the unique issues we face. He understands rural carriers and has partnered with us on a host of critical issues over the years.

There is more work for us to do and we look forward to working with Mr. Tulino in his new role and wish him the best.
